

The Puzzling Persistence of Capital Punishment

Craig S. Lerner

Professor, Antonin Scalia Law School, George Mason University

Craig S. Lerner is a Professor at Antonin Scalia Law School, George Mason University. He served for many years as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Professor Lerner teaches and writes in the area of criminal law, criminal procedure, and legal history. His research has included such topics as sentencing policy, search-and-seizure law, capital punishment, and white-collar crime. His articles have appeared in the University of Chicago Law Review, the Michigan Law Review, the Texas Law Review, the Vanderbilt Law Review, and many other journals.

Professor Lerner received an A.B. and J.D. from Harvard and an M.A. from the Committee on Social Thought at the University of Chicago. He clerked for the Honorable James L. Buckley of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit and worked as an associate at Cooper, Carvin & Rosenthal and Wiley, Rein & Fielding. He also served as an Associate Independent Counsel in the Office of Independent Counsel (Whitewater Investigation).

Written Materials Provided at CAAF Website:

- Lerner, Craig S. (2024). The Puzzling Persistence of Capital Punishment. 38 Notre Dame J.L. Ethics & Pub. Pol'y 39 (2024).